VII FAQs

1. Is active birth suitable for all women? While generally beneficial, it's crucial to discuss with your healthcare provider whether it's suitable based on your individual health status and pregnancy circumstances. Certain medical conditions may necessitate modifications or alternative approaches.
2. What if I experience complications during active birth? It's essential to have a support system including a healthcare professional who understands and supports active birth. In case of complications, they can provide appropriate medical intervention.
3. How can I find a healthcare provider who supports active birth? Search online for midwives or birth centers that are familiar with and supportive of Janet Balaskas' methods. Attend childbirth classes that teach active birth techniques.
4. Is it safe to move around during labor? Movement is generally safe and beneficial during labor unless otherwise advised by your healthcare provider due to specific medical reasons.
5. Can I combine active birth techniques with pain medication if needed? Absolutely. Active birth is about empowering choices. It doesn't preclude the use of pain medication if required.

The focus is on providing options and choices aligned with your preferences.
